SPOTTED BY A WOMAN.

It Was a Treasury Clerk Who Detected Brockway's Bad Money.

From the New York World. "Once a counterfeiter, always a counterfeiter," is an axiom of the United States secret service. Never was this more thoroughly illustrated than in the case of William E. Brockway, head conspirator in the recent counterfeiting schemes detected. His entire life has been spent in the attempt to amass a million lollars at the government's expense. Now, at seventythree, with a long penitentiary term staring him in the face, he has not given up hope. Should he live and get out he will likely return to his nefarious occupation. No counterfeiter was ever known to reform. Punishment in prison does not make them good, nor can they break away from the temptation to invest a few thousand dollars and float a million dollars in queer money. It was an accident which prevent-ed Brockway from becoming a millionaire money. It was an accident which prevented Brockway from becoming a millionaire in 1880. He had got out a counterfeit $100 bill on the Pittsfield (Mass.) National Bank. The ladies of St. Julian's Lodge furnished a bounteous repast to the delegates and visitors, for which a vote of thanks was tendered. The attendance was about tree hundred delegates and visitors. Ploneer Lodge of this town was represented by the following delegates, viz.: Miss Ida N. Ball, Miss Estelle Birch, Miss Pansle Payne, ts a counterfeit quicker than a man. She looks at it and declares, "That is a counterfeit!" Very often she can't pick out the flaws that proclaim it to be bad, but a sense of touch—call it instinct if you will—leads her to believe the bill is bogus, and she is right.

In 1880 the Brockway $100 bill came to the treasury from a New York bank for redemption. The woman clerk caught it, investigation followed, and the only improper of the contraction for th perfection found was a slight dip in the angle of a cross-tree in the picture of a ship. Otherwise the bill was as perfect as ship. Otherwise the bill was as perfect as any turned out by Uncle Sam.

New York city was found to be the head-quarters of the gang that was placing the Pittsfield counterfeit, and the large denomination of the bill caused suspicion to fall on Brockway, who has always delighted in putting out big bills. Brockway was found to be in close acquaintance with Charles H. Smith, an engraver for the American Bank Note Company. James B. Doyle was also spotted as a confederate. All were watched. One day Doyle bought a ticket to Chicago. Secret service men

All were watched. One day Doyle bought a ticket to Chicago. Secret service men went with him. They arrested him in Chicago, opened his valise and found therein, not the Pittsfield notes, but $300,000 in United States bonds, counterfeited almost beyond detection.

This was a new and unexpected disclosure, which resulted in the arrest and conviction of the three. So good were the bonds that a microscopical test was necessary to distinguish them from the genuine. In another week the gang would have been worth a million dollars in good money, and, in fact, several big banks in the country had been taken in on the bogus securities. When an old counterfeiter like Brockway comes out of prison he is continually When an old counterfeiter like Brock-way comes out of prison he is continually watched by secret service men. Such rogues may change their names, and ap-pear to be lost forever, but they are not. There is not a day that some secret service man cannot trace them to their hiding place, or unmask their identity. So long as they do right they are not molested, but the fascination of the profession is too much for a counterfeiter at any age. the fascination of the profession is too much for a counterfeiter at any age.

A man who has given the service more trouble and expense than any other one offender is Nelson Driggs. He is now about eighty-five years old and keeps a roadhouse near Dayton, Ohio. When he was eighty he kept a score of secret service people busy, and only for lack of witnesses would now be, where he has been before, in the penitentiary. Driggs was not an engraver, but with his young wife was an expert handler and shover of the queer. Jim Guyon, the chief confederate of Driggs, has been the only great counterfeiting has been the only great counterfeiting criminal the government has so far falled to catch. He is supposed to have been mixed up in this latest conspiracy, and is described as the most dangerous man of his class, because he is remarkably shrewd in covering up his tracks. Old Driggs has been under constant surveillance for years been under constant surveillance for years, despite his age, mainly because some day the secret service men expect to find Guye through his old confederate

A letter has been received at the headquarters of the Knights of Labor in this city from Secretary Kelliher of the American Railway Union, who is now serving a term in Woodstock, Ill., jail for participation, with Eugene V. Debs and others, in the great Chicago railway strike, which occurred last year. In his communication Mr. Kelliher says: "If ever we were in need of a press that will stand for principle and discuss the live issues of the day with honesty and candor, it is at the presmost trying period, and perhaps something about our jail life and the American Rail-

"The reports from all parts of the country are most encouraging; our incarcera try are most encouraging; our incarcera-tion has aroused our members and real friends to greater effort in all parts of the country, and they are doing some excellent work. The old brotherhoods are dead or disabled at every point, and their 'loyalty' to the railroad corporations during the strike of '94 is being rewarded by abolished schedules, reductions in wages and disschedules, reductions in wages and dis-charges without cause. Since coming to Woodstock we have put this department in working order, and it is constituted to the constant of partment in working order, and it is our purpose to dig and delve for facts, search for truths and promulgate the true principles of industrial reform. Every local union will be turned into a school and provided with a lecturer and library for the distribution of reform literature"

THE CIGAR MAKERS.

Reports From Headquarters Show That Nearly All Are Employed. Information which was recently received by some of the prominent union cigar makers in Washington was to the effect that a number of so-called labor papers throughout the country have been in dustriously circulating a report that the that there are 20,000 of them idle in New York, while only 6,000 are necessary to produce the output. In order to ascertain the correctness or falsity of the rumor President G. W. Perkins of the Cigar Makers' International Union was written to on the subject, and a communication received by him in reply declares that "the story is false" and asks the question, "What are these 20,000 men going to live on? How could that many of a single trade exist when permanently out of employment?"

of employment?"

In refuting this Cory Mr. Perkins shows that if 20,000 cigar makers were idle in New York or anywhere else, each drawing an out-of-work benefit of $3 a week, it would not take very long to disrupt the union. To substantiate that he submits the July report of Union No. 144 of New York city the largest in the country. Out of a city, the largest in the country. Out of a membership of 900 only 33 are out of em-ployment, and they have all drawn during ployment, and they have all drawn during that month only $\frac{800}{2}.$

To further show that the industry is prespering in a remarkable manner and that few men are out of work Mr. Perkins asys that "over 4,000,000 labels have been sent out in the last six weeks, and they can hardly be printed fast enough to supply the demand." He strongly believes, he says, that this, if nothing else, is a good indication that the men have plenty to do and are receiving better wages than formerly. He further says the month of July was the lightest month for out-of-work was the lightest month for out-of-work benefits the union has had in two years.

MORRILL WANTS SECOND PLACE.

The Kansas Governor Said to Be Trying to Arrange a Deal With Reed.

A Topeka, Kan., paper prints a story to the effect that the real purpose of Gov Morrill's trip east is to start a boom for himself for the republican nomination for its particular fad in the way of hot luncheens, according to the Baltimore American. One season it was the hot frankfurter, which had a run of several seasons and would probably still be popular had it not been discovered that a factory for the production of frankfurters was suspiciously near a repository for dead car horses. That hurt the sausage industry. Then came soft crabs on toast and other tempting dishes. This season it is the hot roast beef sandwich. The beef is roasted in front of the passing crowd and cut from the long rolls and served. It is for from the long rolls and served. The testimony of the crew of the train The testimony of the crew of the train was about the same as that of the engineer. The following verdict was rendered: "We, the jury, find that the said stranger came to his death by being struck by train No. 426 on the Washington Southern railroad, on the north-bound track, train leaving Alexandria at 5:30 p.m. The engineer gave crossing and danger signals prior to the accident, which was due to the stranger's own negligence. The railroad and employes are exempt from all blame."

Hot Roast Beef Sandwiches. Each season develops at Coney Island

Nearly every bone in the body was broken.

FOUND AN OLD WELL.

It Was Under the Collapsed New York

The cause of the collapse of the Ireland building, on West Broadway, New York, in which fifteen lives were lest, came to light Tuesday, when the workmen engaged in clearing away the debris in the cellar uncovered an old-fashioned well under the four dation. It was situated directly under the central pillar of the structure, the undermining of which precipitated the dis-aster. The well was only eighteen inches be-low the concrete base on which the pillar rested. It was of the old-fashioned sort, six feet deep by eight feet in diameter, lined with rough stones, and there was no water in it.

lined with rough stones, and there was no water in it.

The coroner and several building experts examined the well, but would give no opinions on the matter. One building expert said, however, that neither the contractor nor the officers of the building department could have been aware of the fact that the well was there, nor of the fact that its filling was too soft.

The Charge Not Sustained.

Monday last a telegraph operator named Smith complained to Officer Atkinson that there was a game of draw poker going on over the store of Mr. W. S. Brown, just opposite the local depot, and Officer Atkinson swore out a warrant for Brown's arrest, When the case came up before Justice Thompson in the police court this morning it was developed that Smith had made the complaint through spite, on account of a grudge against Brown, and of his own knowledge could not swear that gamibling was going on: he had only heard so. Severel witnesses in the case failed to show that the game was going on as alleged, and Mr. Brown was acquitted.
